Foreword

ISO (the International Organization for Standardization) is a worldwide federation of national standards institutes (ISO member bodies). The work of developing International Standards is carried out through ISO technical committees. Every member body interested in a subject for which a technical committee has been set up has the right to be represented on that committee. International organizations, governmental and non-governmental, in liaison with ISO, also take part in the work.

Draft International Standards adopted by the technical committees are circulated to the member bodies for approval before their acceptance as International Standards by the ISO Council.

International Standard ISO 6160 was developed by Technical Committee ISO/TC 97, Computers and information processing, and was circulated to the member bodies in May 1978.

It has been approved by the member bodies of the following countries:

Belgium	Italy	South Africa, Rep. of
Canada	Japan	Spain
Czechoslovakia	Mexico	Sweden
France	Netherlands	Switzerland
Germany, F. R.	New Zealand	United Kingdom
Hungary	Poland	USA
Iran	Romania	USSR

No member body expressed disapproval of the document.
