Foreword

ISO (the International Organization for Standardization) is a worldwide federation of national standards bodies (ISO member bodies). The work of preparing International Standards is normally carried out through ISO technical committees. Each member body interested in a subject for which a technical committee has been established has the right to be represented on that committee. International organizations, governmental and non-governmental, in liaison with ISO, also take part in the work. ISO collaborates closely with the International Electrotechnical Commission (IEC) on all matters of electrotechnical standardization.

The procedures used to develop this document and those intended for its further maintenance are described in the ISO/IEC Directives, Part 1. In particular the different approval criteria needed for the different types of ISO documents should be noted. This document was drafted in accordance with the editorial rules of the ISO/IEC Directives, Part 2. www.iso.org/directives.

Attention is drawn to the possibility that some of the elements of this document may be the subject of patent rights. ISO shall not be held responsible for identifying any or all such patent rights. Details of any patent rights identified during the development of the document will be in the Introduction and/or on the ISO list of patent declarations received. www.iso.org/patents.

Introduction

This document was developed in response to a worldwide and growing need to accommodate the interpreting needs of persons deprived of liberty, suspects, accused, defendants, plaintiffs, claimants, complainants, witnesses, victims, parties in different legal settings during spoken and signed communication as well as judicial stakeholders such as judges, lawyers, prosecutors, police officers, court administrative staff, notaries as well as private persons requiring interpreting services during communicative events related to the law.

The right to legal interpreting services has been enshrined in several international documents (see Annex A). Legal interpreting needs to be of a sufficiently high quality to ensure equal access to justice to all persons as well as fair trials.

Legal interpreting has become established as interpreting services provided by professional interpreters. There are various codes and standards (protocols) for specific settings (e.g. for the police or in court) but they vary from country to country, and there are no universally agreed rules or standards for the provision of legal interpreting services.

NOTE For the purposes of this document, a professional legal interpreter is an individual that meets the requirements of Clause 5.

Legal interpreting is distinct from legal translation and involves the communication of spoken or signed messages in real time.

Standards of legal interpreting training and practice vary widely, and are subject to change with remarkable fluidity. In practice, current trends in several countries go in the direction of de-professionalism due to shortage of financial means, absence of specialized training and lack of awareness of the risks of using non-professional legal interpreters.

Interpreting services — Legal interpreting — Requirements

1 Scope

This document establishes the basic principles and practices of legal interpreting services, and specifies the competences of legal interpreters. It also describes the various legal settings and provides recommendations for the corresponding interpreting modes.

It is applicable to all parties involved in facilitating communication between users of legal services using a spoken or signed language.

2 Normative references

The following documents are referred to in the text in such a way that some or all of their content constitutes requirements of this document. For dated references, only the edition cited applies. For undated references, the latest edition of the referenced document (including any amendments) applies.

3.1 Terms related to interpreting — Modes of interpreting and persons involved

interpret

render spoken or signed information from a source language (3.2.5) to a target language (3.2.7) in spoken or signed form, conveying both the register and meaning of the source language content (3.2.6)

[SOURCE: ISO 18841:2018, 3.1.1, modified - “in oral or signed form” is replaced with “in spoken or signed form”.]

interpreting interpretation

rendering of spoken or signed information from a source language (3.2.5) to a target language (3.2.7) in spoken or signed form, conveying both the register and meaning of the source language content (3.2.6)

[SOURCE: ISO 18841:2018, 3.1.2, modified - “in oral or signed form” is replaced with “in spoken or signed form”.]

legal interpreting interpreting (3.1.2) at communicative settings (3.1.23) related to the law

[SOURCE: ISO 18841:2018, 3.3.4]

3.1.4

interpreter

person who interprets (3.1.1)

3.1.5

legal interpreter

interpreter (3.1.4) who is qualified to provide legal interpreting (3.1.3) services

Note 1 to entry: Legal interpreters can be required to be authorized by law.

3.1.6

translate render source language content (3.2.6) into target language content (3.2.8) in written form

[SOURCE: ISO 17100:2015, 2.1.1]

3.1.7

translation

rendering source language content (3.2.6) into target language content (3.2.8) in written form

[SOURCE: ISO 17100:2015, 2.1.2, modified (“set of processes to render” replaced with “rendering”.)]

translation output

result of translation (3.1.7) <https://standards.iteh.ai/catalog/standards/sist/3dad8d8a-82da-4ea4-b12d-dc6d05eb4f38/iso-20228-2019>

3.1.9

translator

person who translates (3.1.6)

[SOURCE: ISO 17100:2015, 2.4.4]

3.1.10

legal translator

translator (3.1.9) who is qualified to provide translation (3.1.7) services related to the law

Note 1 to entry: Legal translators can be required to be authorized by law.

3.1.11

speaker

person addressing others, using either spoken language (3.2.3) or sign language (3.2.2)

[SOURCE: ISO 18841:2018, 3.1.7]

3.1.12

spoken language interpreting interpreting (3.1.2) between two spoken languages (3.2.3)

[SOURCE: ISO 18841:2018, 3.1.8]

3.1.13sign language interpreting signed language interpreting interpreting (3.1.2) between two sign languages (3.2.2) or between a sign language (3.2.2) and a spoken language (3.2.3)

[SOURCE: ISO 18841:2018, 3.1.9]

3.1.14mode

established method for the delivery of spoken language interpreting (3.1.12) or sign language interpreting (3.1.13)

[SOURCE: ISO 18841:2018, 3.1.11]

3.1.15consecutive interpreting mode (3.1.14) of interpreting (3.1.2) performed after the speaker (3.1.11) pauses

Note 1 to entry: Interpreters (3.1.4) can use special note-taking (3.1.19) techniques to help in rendering lengthy passages.

[SOURCE: ISO 18841:2018, 3.1.12]

3.1.16simultaneous interpreting mode (3.1.14) of interpreting (3.1.2) performed while a speaker (3.1.11) is still speaking or signing

[SOURCE: ISO 18841:2018, 3.1.13]

3.1.17chuchotage*whispered interpreting simultaneous interpreting (3.1.16) where the interpreter (3.1.4) speaks very quietly

Note 1 to entry: Chuchotage/whispered interpreting is used for smaller audiences of one, two or a maximum of three persons.

[SOURCE: ISO 18841:2018, 3.1.16, modified - Definition and Note 1 entry slightly reworded.]

3.1.18sight translation

rendering written source language content (3.2.6) to the target language (3.2.7), in the form of spoken language (3.2.3) or sign language (3.2.2)

[SOURCE: ISO 18841:2018, 3.1.14]

3.1.19note-taking technique in consecutive interpreting (3.1.15) used by interpreters (3.1.4) for remembering, conceptualizing and summarizing information

Note 1 to entry: Note-taking is highly individual and can involve a mixture of symbols, abbreviations, words and diagrams.

[SOURCE: ISO 18841:2018, 3.1.15]

3.1.20

distance interpreting remote interpreting interpreting (3.1.2) of a speaker (3.1.11) in a different location from that of the interpreter (3.1.4), enabled by information and communications technology

[SOURCE: ISO 18841:2018, 3.1.10]

3.1.21

relay interpreting interpreting (3.1.2) that occurs when an interpreter's (3.1.4) input comes from another interpreter's rendition and not directly from the speaker (3.1.11)

Note 1 to entry: When a speech, spoken or signed, is to be interpreted (3.1.1) into three or more target languages (3.2.7) and the interpreters of those languages do not all understand the language of the speaker (e.g. Urdu), a source language (3.2.5) interpreter renders the speech to a language common to other interpreters at the event (e.g. from Urdu to English) who then interpret into their respective target language (e.g. from English to French, German, Italian, Nahuatl, Spanish, Welsh, etc.).

3.1.22

communicative event

encounter between two or more parties during which information is transmitted

Note 1 to entry: The speaker's intention, as well as the gestures, pauses, silences and tone the speaker uses can affect the transmitted information.

3.1.23

communicative setting

environment where an interaction between interlocutors takes place

[SOURCE: ISO 18841:2018, 3.3.1]

[SOURCE: ISO 18841:2018, 3.4.6]

3.2.8target language content

content (3.2.4) that has been interpreted (3.1.1) or translated (3.1.6) from a source language (3.2.5)

[SOURCE: ISO 18841:2018, 3.4.7]

3.2.9language proficiency ability of a person to understand or communicate in a specified language (3.2.1)

Note 1 to entry: Language proficiency generally refers to speaking, listening, reading and writing skills.

3.2.10authorization

third-party attestation of a person's right to provide a specialized service

Note 1 to entry: Authorization for legal interpreters (3.1.5) and legal translators (3.1.10) is conferred by a recognized authoritative body.

Note 2 to entry: In some countries, state/official authorization is referred to as accreditation, certification, credentialing, etc.

3.2.11protocol

rule, official procedure or common practice that guides the conduct of members of a profession

EXAMPLE Taking an oath in court to perform accurate interpreting (3.1.2), using direct speech when interpreting, or adhering to the code of ethics of a professional association.

[SOURCE: ISO 18841:2018, 3.1.17]

4 Basic principles of legal interpreting4.1 General

Legal interpreting shall be performed by legal interpreters meeting the requirements of Clause 5, following a relevant code of professional ethics and adhering to accepted professional practices, so-called professional interpreting protocols, which can vary by interpreting setting, and by country or region.

4.2 Nature of legal interpreting

As a specialization of interpreting, legal interpreting contributes to equal access to the law for all parties by facilitating communication between users of legal services who do not share the same language — either spoken languages or sign languages. It occurs mainly in different legal settings such as police stations, court rooms, lawyer’s offices, prisons, etc. (Annex B lists the different settings). Legal interpreting can involve the transfer of signed, verbal and/or non-verbal messages in real time usually in both directions.

There are certain areas of overlap with community interpreting/public service interpreting concerning interpreting communicative events. See 3.1.22 and Figure B.1 for details.

NOTE Non-verbal messages can include tone, body language, facial expressions and (explanatory) gestures.

Legal interpreting takes place between at least three participants:

- 1) a user of a language other than the language of service who needs to communicate with a speaker of the language of service;
- 2) a user of the language of service who needs to communicate with a speaker of a language other than the language of service; and
- 3) a legal interpreter.

NOTE In some countries “language of service” is also referred to as “official language”, “language of the court” or “language of proceedings”.

Annex A gives an overview of national and international documents pertaining to the right to interpretation in legal proceedings.

4.3 The work of legal interpreters

ITeH STANDARD PREVIEW

(standards.iteh.ai)

Legal interpreters engage in interactive types of communication that usually follow a bi-directional pattern. Such individuals are proficient in at least two languages (spoken languages or sign languages) and so are able to facilitate interpreted communication between two or more languages regarding legal topics. Legal interpreters can work in a mixed mode switching between consecutive and simultaneous mode, with sound transmission equipment when working with large groups or without sound transmission equipment (chuchotage [whispered interpreting]). Sometimes they work face-to-face and sometimes remotely using technology such as video- or tele-conferencing (distance interpreting [remote interpreting]). Legal interpreters must adapt their working mode to the specific situation or communicative setting (in and out of court). Annex C provides more details.

NOTE Annex D describes the typical steps of an interpreting assignment by way of example.

4.4 End-users of legal interpreting services

The end-users of legal interpreting services belong to two distinct groups. Legal service providers are the first group. They must be able to understand and communicate with the persons who are not sufficiently proficient in the language of service used in order to solve legal issues. Legal service providers are speakers of the language of service used in legal settings. They shall ensure that the services of qualified legal interpreters are retained in order to avoid delays in proceedings and errors/mistakes in communication which can lead to legally effective but erroneous decisions. The other group is generally made up of persons who are not sufficiently proficient in the language of service used in the specific legal setting and who need to communicate with speakers of the language of service in order to solve legal issues. Speakers of other languages than the language of service used in legal settings can only have access to fair-trial standards when legal interpreting services of a sufficiently high quality are systematically provided.

NOTE Relay interpreting (see 3.1.21) is sometimes used and acceptable for the provision of interpreting services for which no or only a few qualified interpreters are available.
