Foreword

ISO (the International Organization for Standardization) is a worldwide federation of national standards bodies (ISO member bodies). The work of preparing International Standards is normally carried out through ISO technical committees. Each member body interested in a subject for which a technical committee has been established has the right to be represented on that committee. International organizations, governmental and non-governmental, in liaison with ISO, also take part in the work. ISO collaborates closely with the International Electrotechnical Commission (IEC) on all matters of electrotechnical standardization.

Draft International Standards adopted by the technical committees are circulated to the member bodies for voting. Publication as an International Standard requires approval by at least 75 % of the member bodies casting a vote.

International Standard ISO 14453 was prepared by Technical Committee ISO/TC 6, Paper, board and pulps.

It cancels and replaces ISO 624:1974 of which it constitutes a technical revision.

Introduction

This International Standard has been developed as a replacement for ISO 624:1974, Pulps — Determination of dichloromethane soluble matter, the previous solvent extraction method for pulps. The reason for the replacement is the potential health hazard using dichloromethane, the use of which is restricted by law in some countries.

For some pulps the results obtained according to this International Standard are on a higher level than those obtained with ISO 624.
